ASTRONOMY IN THE RENAISSANCE

One of the scientific fields that advanced the most during the Renaissance is astronomy. The astronomer Copernicus was the first to propose that our solar system was not geocentric but heliocentric. Below, you can see a geocentric model of the solar system. Answer the questions as best you can based on your knowledge of our solar system!

Galileo was troubled with developing an instrument that is essential to astronomy. What is it?

In the middle, you can see the main problem with a geocentric model, and also the reason that led to the heliocentric model. What is the center of this model?

Tycho Brahe believed in a heliocentric universe. He was wrong, but he taught one of the astronomers on this sheet how to make the best astronomical measurements! What astronomer discovered that orbits were elliptical. Who was he?

If this is a geocentric model, what do you think Copernicus' heliocentric model looks like?

Johannes Kepler discovered that the planets did not move in perfect circles. Like the model, but in ellipses. What does an ellipse look like? Draw one here!
